

Six startups. One number each.

6

NYC startups, pre-seed to Series B

60+

open roles on their public boards
today

~$160M

raised between them

Each number: the growth they reported, or the size of the problem they're chasing.

<15 → 70+

people on the team, January to September 2026

Next stop, per CEO Ayush Sharma: 100+ by year-end, and 21 roles open right now across engineering and GTM.

800+

startup clients in its first seven months, with a lawyer reviewing every AI draft

Baseline: zero at its public launch in December 2025, months after Logan Brown left Cooley to start it. The company also reports $1M+ in billable hours saved for founders.

3 mo → 10 days

time to take a pharma campaign to market

The old way, as the founders told it: one email, ~100 people touching it, and $30–40K before it ships. Review rounds per asset: 3.2 → 1.2.

59%

of consumer-brand trade promotions lose money

And brands spend ~20% of revenue on them, mostly tracked in retailer portals, PDFs and spreadsheets. That's the mess a team of three is going after.

Skip the cold DM.

- 1 Founders pitch what they're building and who they're hiring
- 2 Scan the QR code, opt in for an intro to any company
- 3 The founders get your name after the event
- 4 Talk to the team in the room, not just the founder
